yesterday morning and had an interview with Superintendent Byrnes that lasted about an They were talking about Mrs. Zella Nicolaus and the suit for $40,000 which she has brought against Mr. Gould. Superintendent Byrnes said later:

"I have had several interviews with Mr. Gould since that suit was begun, and I think I know all about the woman. She is an adventuress, of course, and I have been keeping track of her for some time. It is not proper that I should tell now what I know about her, and I am going to say nothing more on that subject at present.

In the afternoon Mr. Byrnes shook his head when asked about a report that he was going to cause the arrest of the woman, but he refused to talk about her further.

Mr. Gould declined to discuss the subject of his visit to Superintendent Byrnes or the rumors that he had received an offer to compromise the Nicolaus case for $500. Mr. Gould said that now that he had placed his case in the hands of his attorney, W. Bourke Cockran, who is at present in Washington, he preferred to make no further statement on the matter.

At the St. James Hotel it was said yesterday afternoon that "A. Ruhman and wife," who, it is said, are respectively A. Ruhman, the guardian, and Mrs. Nicolaus, had left the hotel, and there was no trace of their whereabouts. When the St. James Hotel people found that their guests were acquiring a notoriety which would reflect no credit on their stopping place, they politely requested them to move elsewhere, and they did. E. Dorval, the proprietor, said yesterday afternoon that when Ruhman and his alleged wife came to the hotel they took rooms which cost $8 a day. Ruhman said that when his bill amounted to $100 he wished to be told of it, thereby implying that this sum was all he cared to spend. But before the ledger held any such account against the two hoarders their notoriety became such that they were requested to leave the house. At 7 o'clock Thursday evening the two drove away and shortly afterward an expressman called for their baggage. Where it was taken is not known.

Mr. Hummel, of the firm of Howe & Hummel, attorieys for Mrs. Nicolaus, explained the departure of Mr. Ruhman from the St. James Hotel—that is, in part. "The Mr. Ruhman there," he said, "was A. Ruhman, the guardian ad litem appointed by the court for Mrs. Nicolaus, but the woman with him was not Mrs. Nicolaus, I do not know who the woman was. The proprietor of the St. James wrote to me asking if Ruhman were good for a bill of a certain amount. I answered that he was and $25 more. That is all I had to do with it.

"Mrs. Nicolaus is in this city and visits my they did. E. Dorval, the proprietor, said yes-

"Mrs. Nicolaus is in this city and visits my office daily, but I cannot say where she is staying. She wanted me to tell her whole story when the various accounts of her were printed, so as to set herself right before the public, but I advised against it in the interests of her suit."

I advised against it in the interests of her suit."

Mr. Hummel said that Ruhman and Mrs. Nicolaus had been at his office the day before, and that he, knowing that reporters were outside waiting to see Mrs. Nicolaus and find out where she went, had sent Ruhman away with a "dummy" woran and had let Mrs. Nicolaus go later unobserved "Mrs. Nicolaus visited our office again to-day," said Mr. Hummel. "She came here about 3 p. m. and stayed for over an hour. There were four or five reporters outside. I sent for a cab and the reporters outside. I sent for a cab and the reporters sent for one too, but mine came first, and Mrs. Nicolaus get safely away again. She may come again to-m-rrow. I am in daily communication with her."

Then he told all his friends that his wife had stolen $400 and run

When Mrs. Modric and her numerous children arrived at Ellis Island the officials wrote to Washington about it. As Modric had been in this country two years, it was decided that the Government was not responsible for the family. Then the Immigration people tried to get the United Hebrew Charities to take care of them. The attempt was not successful, and the Department of Charities and Correction was then treed, test Superintendent, Blake would have none of the Modric family. An attempt to get the North-German Lloyd Steamship Company, which had brought the Modrics over, to pay for the support of the family at the Island was also futile. The company declared that according to the story of Modric his wife left Philadelphia with $49s.

While Mrs. Modric and her children were being taken about the city from one charity to another, the husband and father supposed they were well on their way to roland; so be put his house in order and concluded it would be a good thing to have and concluded it would be a good thing to have and experience and tills Island and said he was a poor immigrant anxious to be sent back to join his family in Poland. Kerr, professional nurse, sued Matthew Cosgrove, a bookseller and nurse, sued Matthew Cosgrove, a bookseller and stationer at No. 816 Sixth-sve., for money spent in taking charge of his insane wife while on a trip to Europe. Miss Kerr said that Cosgrove promised her 25, besides all the expenses. Cosgreve handed her an envelope before the Etrula, the vessel on which passage had been taken, sailed. When this was opened only a single sovereign was found. To make matters worse she found that her tickets were second-chass, instead of first, as promised, and her experiences with four other women who occupied the same stateroom, when they found that an insane woman was among them, were deckledly unpleasant.

Unpleasant.
On arriving on the other side Miss Kerr was dunfounded to learn that Cosgrove's sister and mother in Ireland knew nothing of his intention, as declared to her, to send his wife to them, and they refused to receive her. The nurse had to pay money out to get the woman committed to an asylum, and when she returned to this country Cosgrove refused to pay her bill. After a consultation with his lawyers yesterday he paid the bill in full.

A POLICEMAN ARRIVES. Among the prisoners arraigned yesterday in the Lee Avenue Police Court was John Carroll, who said he lived "at various places." Carroll was with attempted larceny by Mrs. Emma Puff, of No. 267 Stockton-st. He was captured after an exciting struggle by Mrs. Margaret Gusmann, a tenant in the house. Mrs. Gusmann detected the prisoner coming out of Mrs. Puff's apartments on Thursday night and grappled with him. Carroll managed to break away and ran down stairs into the basement of the house. Mrs. Gusmann followed him, calling for help. In the basement she again caught hold of the man, and while she was struggling with him Mrs. Puff responded to her cries and assisted in holding Carroll until Policeman Seifert, of the Thirteenth Precinct, who had been summoned by one of the children, arrived and arrested him. When the officer appeared Carroll was making a desperate attempt to free himself, but was unable to escape from the two women. At the police station Carroll said he had entered the wrong house while in search of his sister. Mamie, a dressmaker, who lived in the neighborhood. On exemination of Mrs. Puff's rooms it was found that they had been ransacked, and that her husband's clothing had been packed and made ready for removal.

Better taste cannot well be imagined than is shown in those dotted reversible four-in-hands; 60 cents and such quality! Our furnishings match our clothing nearer than they ever did, which is commendation indeed. Our hats and shoes have always deserved your good opinion. As for the boys' and men's clothing, some thousands of well-dressed New Yorkers are in evidence as to its excellence.
